Persons Engaged in the Late White Cap Outrages to Be Placed on Trial To-day.

The Absconding Columbus Bank Teller Gives Back a Portion of the Stolen Funds-A Man Who Wants to Kill His Children.

INDIANA.

Alleged White Caps Put Under Arrest for the Trial Which Begins To-Day. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

CORYDON, Dec. 3. -At the last session of the Crawford county grand jury, indictments were found against the following men for engaging in the notorious White Cap outrages: Wm. Gregory, James L. Lynch, Lewis David Velt, Samual Butt, John C. Rawlins, Floyd Morgan, Charles Morgan, Wg. Wiseman and Reuben Roverson. All of the men, with the exception of two, who have left the county, have been placed under arrest. and will be tried at the next term of the Circuit Court, which begins Dec. 4. There are four indictments against each of them, one for conspiracy to murder and three for assault and battery. Major W. and James R. Funk, of this place, have been appointed by the Governor to assist in the prosecution, and Messrs. Peskinpaugh & Weathers, of Leavenworth, were appointed by the court to also assist. Major Funk has just returned from Indisnapolis, where he was in consultation with the Governor in regard to the prosecution. A detective assisted the local authorities in working up the cases. Some of the men under arrest are prominent business men. The prosecution is based upon the whipping of Clemintine Wiseman and Nancy Moore and the conspiracy to murder Morris Moreland, last summer.

Schrieber Gives Up Part of His Stealings. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

Columbus, Dec. 3.-A telegram was received this afternoon by L. K. Ong, cashier of the robbed First National Bank here, from Capt. N. J. Lucas, its president, who went to Canada pursuit of the absconding teller. The message stated that he met Schrieber in Windsor this morning, but no definite arrangement had yet been made with him whereby he was to receive the papers or any of the cash. There was quite a run on the bank to-day by depositors, but all demands were promptly met.

A later dispatch to the Associated Press from Detroit says: Will Schrieber, the absconding teller of the First National Bank of Columbus, Ind., made a parsettlement with President Lucas of the bank in Windsor, Ont., to-day, which nets him several thousand dollars. He will complete the deal to-morrow or next day, and will be insured immunity from prosecution whenever he chooses to return to the States. It is said that Schrieber paid back $2,000 of the bank's money and also returned the securities he had taken.

Thinks It His Duty to Kill His Children. Special to the Indianapolis Journa.

WABASH, Dec. 3.-Joseph Wigner, who resides on the Lagro road, east of this city, is afflicted with a strange mental aberration, and he appears to be convinced that it is his duty to slaughter three of his children. The trouble dates back for several days. The neighbors think that Wigner has had mighty domestic trouble, which may account for his present condition. He sees huge knives coming through the walls of his home, and many other apparitions. The has repeatedly stated that he would kill his children, but a close watch is being kept on his movements and his designs are certain to be frustrated.

A Crazy Woman Found Hiding in a Cave. Boonville Special.

While some young men were hunting in the woods near Boonville, last Saturday they captured a demented woman, whose history is a mystery. She had been for several days roaming through the swamps and woods in an almost nude condition and would utter a shrick and dart away like a frightened deer at the approach of a human being. A party was organized for her capture and she was pursued to her hiding-place in an old cave. When she found herself surrounded she attempted to dash through the crowd, but was caught and securely bound. She could not talk, but uttered a moan continuously. She is undoubtedly demented, and has wandered away from some of the surrounding counties. She is about thirty years of age. Her face and body have been terribly lacerated by brambles and bushes. In her temporary hiding-place were found a quantity of nuts and herbs and a piece of an old broken earthenware pitcher. She was carried to a neighboring farmer's house, where she has become more docile, and efforts are on foot to find out who

Remains of a Man Found in a Strawstack. Special to the Indianapolis Journal

LEBANON, Dec. 3.-There is a great deal of excitement here and in the surrounding country over the finding of the body of "Doc" Montgomery in a strawstack on John Routh's farm, four miles west of this city, where it had been for the past four weeks. Montgomery lived at Advance, a small station on the Midland railway, and although he had been missed, no search was ever instituted for him, as he had often absented himself for weeks at a time. The body was accidentally discovered by hunters and an alarm was given. In removing the body the lower limbs dropped off and were seen to be putrefied. On his person was found a bottle labeled "Laudanum," with the contents gone. He was last seen in a drunken condition on election day, and it is generally believed that he committed suicide with laudanum. He was forty years old and leaves a wife. The coroner has the case under his charge, and will give it a thorough investigation

Monroe County Teachers. Special to the Indianapolis Journal

BLOOMINGTON, Dec. 3 .- The second annual session of the Monroe County Teachers' Association met in the high-school room, Friday morning, with an attendance of near two hundred. In addition to the regular programme, prepared by the teachers, Professors Beck and Wiley, of the State University, gave interesting exercises. The musical programme was a special feature. The Mason Long Pilgrim Quartet was present, and rendered excellent selections. J. R. Mutz, of the University choir, and Florence McKee sang solos. Another feature of the association was the school exhibit, which attracted much Attention. Superintendent Craven, of this county, has prepared the largest and one of the most complete school manuals ever published in the State, and as an evidence of the esteem in which he is held by the teachers of this county. he was unanimously indorsed by the association for a second term.

A Justice Who Is a Law Unto Himself. Special to the Indianapoils Journal

CORYDON, Dec. 3.-Christian Myers, a business man of Lanesville, was brought to this place and jailed, Saturday evening, to serve a sentence imposed by 'Squire Horner, "for a drunken rampage." The justice had no authority to sentence him to jail, but it seems that he is going to serve his time, snyway. Besides this sentence, he was fined $10 "to be paid to the corporation of Lanesville," in face of the fact that all fines go to the State. The justice also decided that Myers "must pay all jail expenses." It is alleged that Myers attempted to kill his family.

WABASH, Dec. 3.-There is a war between the Wabash Natural-gas Company, which began operations here to-day, and the City Council over the schedule of rates. The ordinance under which the company is doing business provides for a mixer rate and a stove-fire-pot-diameter rate, at the option of the consumer. The company now refuses to make contracts save by mixer rates, and at a special meeting of the Council to-night the city attorney was directed to begin injunction proceedings to restrain it from supplying gas in violation of the ordinance. Citizens will be given printed notices of the Council's action to-morrow morning, and will be advised not to make further contracts until the difficulty is settled.

Insanity Caused by Too Much Liquor. Special to the Indianapolis Journal

COLUMBUS, Dec. 3.-Col. John A Keith, formerly a prominent lawyer and wealthy citizen of this city, has been re-committed to the insane asylum. Continuous heavy drinking of strong whisky caused him to become afflicted with dementia and he was adjudged insane about a year ago. After staying at the asylum a few months, he was released as cured, but soon after gaining his liberty he again took to drinking, and it was not long until he was insane.

Suicide of a Saloon-Keeper.

The clothing house of M. Cohen & Co., at New Albany, was mysteriously burned on Sunday night, entailing a loss of $1,000 on the stock, which was fully insured.

The barn of Charles Anderson, in East Columbus, was destroyed by hre Sunday hight, together with all its contents. The loss is not large; no insurance. The fire originated by a cow kicking over a lighted lantern, which set fire to the hay.

Milo Pearson has been given a verdict in the Huntington county Circuit Court for $3,575.50, against Wabash county, for damages caused by the breaking down of a bridge which he and his brother were crossing at the time, and which, he claims, has personally injured him.

A horse, in crossing the railroad at New Richmond, Montgomery county, got one of his hind feet fastened between the rail and the planks placed between the two rails. The horse, in trying to free his foot, tore it entirely off, and afterward was shot to end his sufferings. The wife of Benjamin F. Repp. a prominent citizen of Columbus, died very suddenly Sunday night. She appeared in excellent health all evening, and did not complain of feeling badly until about 11 o'clock, when she arose from bed, and said she believed she was dying, and expired almost instantly. Her age is forty-nine years, and she leaves a husband and eight children.

McPherson Post, G. A. R., No. 1, at Craw-fordsville, elected the following officers last Saturday night: Post commander, C. M. Travis; senior vice-commander, S. L. Ensminger; junior vice-commander, S. A. Stilwell; quartermaster, L. A. Foote; officer of the day, Joseph McDaniel; officer of the guard, W. H. Morrison; chaplain, A. S. Holbrook. These new officers will be installed on Saturday night, Jan. 5. There is no dissatisfaction among the Democratic members of this post.

The society for the prevention of cruelty to animals was appealed to, but no action will likely be taken to prevent the killing of the dog.

A Baby-Farmer Comes to Grief.

LONG ISLAND CITY, L. I., Dec. 3.-Mary Purbell, aged twenty-five, colored, was in court today charged with keeping a baby farm. She was remanded. During the past three months sever teen infants have been found on the doorsteps, of houses in this city. The regularity with which they were found led the police to belies they were all disposed of by the same perso as, and that such person was in the babyfarming business. The efforts of the po-Ice to discover any clew were fruitless. Accident revealed both. Overseer of the Poor Tallon was notified on Saturday that a white child was dead at the house of Mrs. Purnell, who said she was too poor to pay the burial expenses. When Mr. Tallon called at the house and saw other white infants there, he notified the police. From Mrs. Purnell, herseif, they learned that the dead infant, which was three months old, and two others about the same age, had been obtained by her from Mrs. Koahler, midwife, of New York, she receiving $20 with each one. A child of Jewish parentage, now eight months old, and another a few weeks old, she says, she got from a Mrs. Morgan, also of New York. Mrs. Purnell claims to have been sent to the women mentioned by a Dr. Cook, of New York. The police have satisfactorily proved that within three weeks the woman has had six infants in her care. She has no Mrs. Purnell has been doing a profitable business by taking the infants at $20 each, and after a few days getting rid of them by leaving them at night on door-steps.

ESCAPE OF THE CZAR AND FAMILY. An Eye-Witness Describes the Frightful Wreck of the Imperial Train.

Pall Mall Gazette. Private letters from St. Petersburg give thrill ing details of the narrow escape of the imperial family from death in the recent railroad accident, which smashed the imperial car into fragments. The Czar, the Empress, the Crown Prince, and two or three more of the imperial children were at dinner when the wreck came, and this is how an eve-witness describes the escape of the royal family:

"Out of the crushed woodwork of the car, which appeared to be most completely ruined, the illustrious family were rescued one after another, and all unhurt, save for a few bruises and cuts. That they were not all killed from first to last is now the subject of the profoundest amazement for all Russia. A dog-Kamtchatka -the Czar's favorite hound, lying at his feet; a servant presenting to him a tray with a glass of tes; both the servant and the dog killed instantaneously, and the Czar remains unscratched. Under the feet of the whole imperial party, seated around the dining table, the floor sinks, the whole bottom of the carriage disappears. The four walls are crushed together in the sudden smash; the unsupported roof gives way, and is prevented falling on the heads of the Empress and the august children only by the powerful arms of the Emperor, who for several minutes supports it alone above the heads of his family. The little Grand Duchess Olga is thrown out to a distance of several feet down the embankment; the little Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch is buried under the ruined carriage so deep that he could hardly be discovered, and then dug out and rescued from under the debria with the greatest difficultyand both children are perfectly safe and unhurt. The Grand Duke George (the second son) finds himself squeezed between two seats, and at the his head; but a second, just one second earlier, a heavy brass frame falling into the same seats is found dove-tailing onto the two, leaving a recess just large enough to contain and protect his body, and meanwhile Count Sheremettef arrests the heavy bar in its fall, which crushes and almost tears three fingers off his hand, but

George remains uninjured. "The Empress," continues the letter, "was the first to extricate herself from the wreck, and her terrible cry, 'Where is the Emperor? Where are my children?' was more heartrending than any words can describe. But Heaven gave them all back to her-all-out of that heap of ruin. It was miraculous. There is no other word. As I looked at what had been the dining-saloon, and then at those who had been there, the brain refused to think; one stood confounded before some inscrutable but horrible mystery. Out of the carriage the little Olga Alexandrovna was hurled with her English nurse, who had barely time to snatch her up in her arms, and the two must have fallen at least twenty feet on the slope, slippery with rain. The nurse's first idea was that she must run out of the way of further danger, but in doing so she let go of the child, who got up and ran wildly on, crying, 'Don't kill me, good God! Don't kill me, good God!' Her nurse's cries brought her back to her, and then the little frightened soul, when she saw her papa and mamma, her brothers and sisters, were all safe, threw her little arms round her purse's neck erying: 'How I should like to throw my arms round God's neck and kiss him for saving us all!" And that little one touched the chord which by that time vibrates in the hearts of millions of grown men and women in this great empire. 'I was stupid, you know; stupid, because I didn't know where I was running to a bit, the child said of her own accord afterwards. "The Empress's right hand was badly bruised, and the left slightly cut about, but she went at once to attend the wounded as they were extricated from the wreck of the other car. For nearly four hours she sat in the drizzling rain on that sopping bank binding up their wounds or soothing them with words healing as the balm of Gilead. One poor fellow lay there mortally hurt, with his face fearfully scalded. and she sat by him cooling his face with her bandkerchief dipped in water, and the poor fellow died kissing her hand."

Harrison's Broad View.

Washington Special. The following is special to the New York Herald from Indianapolis: "Senator Stewart stopped off here to-day to shake hands with Gen. Harrison, on his way to Washington. Gen. Chalmers, of Mississippi, who arrived in this city last night, accompanied Gen. Stewart to Gen. Harrison's home, this morning, where the South and its troubles were freely discussed. When Gen. Chalmers returned to the hotel I obtained from him the first direct expression from the President-elect with reference to his future policy. The subject was introduced as Gen. Chalmers says, by himself. He said to Gen. Harrison that all he desired to ask from the new administration was that it provide for and insist on a fair election and a fair count of the votes cast in the South. This brought from General Harrison the following direct statement, spoken in a forcible and earnest manner: "It is fallacy to recognize such a thing as a Southern question. While I am President I shall only demand that the people of the whole country shall obey the laws of the Nation withont reference to the section in which they may live. It is an insult to me for the Southern people to intimate that it is my desire to deal harsh-ly with them. It would also be an insult to them for me to anticipate that they do not expect to obey the laws as they do and shall exist." General Chalmers was deeply interested in Gen. Harrison's manner and words, and he says that he is entirely satisfied that the President-elect will deal fairly and justly with the Southern

The Harrison Monument Bill.

Washington Special. There is one bill now on the House calendar which Mr. Cleveland will hardly feel called upon to veto if it should come before him for his signature, and which President Harrison will doubtless be only too giad to sign if it should be revived in the next Congress. Last January, Representative Brown, of Cincinnati, introduced a bill for the erection of a monument to the late William Henry Harrison. The first section of the bill reads: "That there shall be erected at North Bend, O., a granite monument with appropriate inscriptions to commemorate the illustrious public services of the late William Henry Harrison." The bill provides that a commission of three Senators and three Representatives shall be authorized to contract for the monument, which is not to cost more than $20,000, exclusive of site. The bill was favorably reported by the library committee, and has been on the calendar ever since last March.

Use Brown's Expectorant. It never fails to cure coughs, colds, etc.

THE COMING LEGISLATURE.

Preparations for the State Solons-Candidates and Measures Advocated.

Preparations at the State-house for the coming of the Legislature are in an advanced state of activity. Those of the State officere who have not already filed their reports, are busily engaged in compiling them, and a larger number of those from public institutions have been received by the Governor than is usual so far license to keep a baby farm. It is supposed that | in advance of the meeting of the two houses. Nearly a full month intervenes before the members of the General Assembly will be called upon to take their seats, yet in the hall of the House of Representatives nearly all the Democrats and more than half the Republicans have preempted them, and in the Senate chamber a majority of both sides have picked out locations from which they believe the presiding officer's eye can be readily captured. The statement that several statesmen picked out seats before their election, and subsequently found that they had no use for them. alleviated by the explanation that the seats were taken when the first returns indicated the success of their choosers, and that it was a second edition of figures which made such choice seem premature.

The Democratic complexion of both houses confines most of the anxiety concerning their organization to Democratic aspirants and their friends. For the speakership of the House Marion county furnishes two candidates, Capt. J. B. Curtis, of the Hendricks Club, and Gabriel Schmuck. It will probably require a caucus of the Democratic members from this and adjoining counties to determine which shall give way. Mason J. Niblack, of Vincennes, a son of Judge Niblack is also prominently mentioned for the place, and there are numerous dark horses ready to take advantage of any opening in the situation. For the minor offices the names of the candidates is legion, and their pulling and hauling, already begun, will be intensified as the period of decision approaches. One of the customs of candidates, which is very much admired by the hotel proprietors here, is for each aspirant to bring with him all the friends be can muster to assist him in the canvass, and the result is a numerous conglomeration of perspiring electioneerers in the hotel lobbies who share the candidate's bed and board until his case is decided, and who give the hotels an appearance which suggests a State fair or political convention. There is a good deal of talk about amendments in the laws regulating the appointment of heads of bureaus and trustees of the public institutions, but it is hardly likely that any progress will be made in that direction during the coming session. At present most of these officers are responsible only to the Legislature, and as that is in session but a small portion of each alternate year, there is a large opportunity for mismanagement to go unchecked, as has been shown in the case of the Insane Hospital and other State institutions, Responsibility to a creative power, which is al ways in existence, is said to be what is wanted, but as this would transfer a portion of the patronage of the Legislature to the executive department, it is hardly to be hoped for at this

A SINGULAR ACCIDENT.

Distressing Fate of a Young Wife Who Was Shot While Suffering from Sickness.

An accident of peculiar nature occurred to Mrs. Geo. M. Baron, of 122 Dorman street, yesterday morning. It is stated that during the night Mr. Baron was aroused by the barking of the dog which was in the house, and supposing there were persons outside attempting an entrance, he got his revolver and made an inspection of the premises. Not finding any cause for the disturbance, he retired, placing the pistol under his pillow. After this Mrs. Baron grew ill, and about 5 o'clock her husband got up to put coal on the fire and send for medical assistance. While doing this he heard the report of the pistol, and, hastening to the bed-room, found his wife had been wounded. It is supposed that Mrs. Baron, in the agony of pain, grasped the pillow under which the revolver was placed, and, in doing so, her hand came in contact with the revolver, which was a self-acting one, thereby producing its discharge. The ball penetrated the right eyeball and ranged back to same moment a heavy iron bar is descending on the base of the brain. Mrs. Baron is unconscious, and there are very little hopes of her recovery. This account of the occurrence is given by the brother-in-law and sister of the lady. They state that the relations of Mr. and Mrs. Baron, who had been married but three months, were happy. Drs. Taylor and Marsee attended Mrs. Baron, but they have so far been unable to probe for the ball.

Baptized 122 Converts in an Hour. Hopkinsville (Ky.) Special.

An extraordinary baptismal ceremony took place here to-day. One hundred and twentytwo converts, gathered by revival at the Virginia-street Baptist Church, were immersed by Rev. Williams, pastor of the church, in an old mill-pond in a bend of Little river, where multitudes of white and colored converts have been baptized for many years. Long before 11 o'clock, the hour appointed for the ceremony, spectators, devout and curious, of every condition, white and colored, flocked from the country for miles around to witness the unusual scene, The river banks, bluff and trees along the stream were crowded with eager gazers. Candidates for baptism, all comfortably and neatly clad, with white handkerchiefs tied loosely about their necks, marched down Main street from the church in double file. followed by several thousand men, women and children, to the mill-pond. Elder Williams, a man of stout, muscular build, broke the church record by baptizing 122 persons in an hour and ten minutes. The day was raw, the water chilly. During the ceremony an adventurous negro fell from an overhanging sycamore into the Cincinnati Enquirer, Monday, Several requests are at hand for further information concerning M. Baudin, over whom Paris has been making such a demonstration. He was a quiet citizen of no prominence while living, and was lifted into fame only by being the first victim of Louis Napoleon's coup d'etat, of which yesterday was the anniversary. Thus made a martyr, the Republicans and all branches of the Radicals soon made him a saint; and his remains were yesterday, by anthority of the French Parliament, reburied, with the most conspicuous of public honors, in the Pantheona mansoleum reserved, like Westminster Abbey in England, for the nation's greatest and best. Probably the fullest and most graphic description of M. Baudin's death, as well as of the whole details of the coup d'etat, is to be found in Victor Hugo's "The Story of a Crime." Times have greatly changed since the day when the Second Empire leaped into being.

"What do you think of the report that the federal grand jury at Indianapolis was to investigate the charges against W. W. Dudley?" "It can't injure him. Democratic forgeries and Democratic falsehoods are impotent to burt Dudley. His whole theory of politics is for fair lections. I have worked with Colonel Dudley in two campaigns-those of 1884 and 1888-and I have heard him say many a time that if he could save the presidency to the Republican arty by any trickery or any device in saving 100 votes he wouldn't do it, and that he wouldn't be a party to stealing the presidency by stealing votes any more than he would be to stealing property. This is the right theory. It is the true Republican theory. With absolutely fair elections the Republicans would carry four-fifths of the States. With the Republican

A WORD OF WARNING.

There are many white soaps, each represented to be "just as good as the 'Ivory';" they ARE NOT, but like all counterfeits, lack the peculiar and remarkable qualities of the genuine. Ask for "Ivory" Soap and insist upon getting it.

I work on the boats in summer, but haven't had any work for a month. The money is all give out. I went from house to house asking for work, and they all seemed to think I was looking to steal something. I was hungry and had no place to go, so I came along by this house and I made

What a lesson there is in this? With our ministers discussing "Robert Elsmere" and denouncing the Sunday newspapers; the missions collecting money for dress suits to send the Zulus and the Chilcats; the fashionable caterers and the florists overworked filling orders for coming feasts and fetes; with society people paying $2.50 per seat to hear an actor speak a tongue they do not understand, the waifs must not expect any consideration or attention these days. It is unnecessary to say that the situation would be entirely different to-day if the auti-protection party had won the victory on the sixth day of November. Even the defeated are to be congratulated on their defeat, for they are vastly more benefited by national prosperity than by partisan victory.

Money and Saloons in Politics.

New York Sun. Sensational parade of Dudley letters and newspaper stories will not alter the fact that direct bribery at elections is a very minor evil in this country. It is great only in the imagina-tions of the gullible and unsophisticated. Its importance in politics is about as great relatively as the civil-service reform bumbug is among the great practical issues on which parties di-

As to the saloon in politics, its influence is not ess exaggerated. It is not the saloon that is important, but the people who go to the saloon for the satisfaction of their social instincts. They comprise the majority of the voters of New York, and of course they decide elections. That is about the hard-pan of ordinary post-

election gossip. A Little Too Previous.

Those Democratic papers and clubs which are naming Mr. Cleveland for the Presidency in 1892 are extremly previous. By that time peaple will be asking, "Who was Grover Cleve land, anyway!"
